4 — Opening

Some come for Torah,
Some come for Madah,
But everyone learnt
How to follow the saying
"LOVE YOUR NEIGHBOR LIKE YOURSELF."

40 — Religious Studies

אמר רבי אלעזר
אמר רבי חנינא
תלמידי חכמים
מרבים שלום בעולם
שנאמר וכל בניך למודי ה'
ורב שלום בניך
אל תקרי בניך אלא בוניך

21 — Student Life

We talked, we joked, we cried, we thought, we slept, we played ball, we dated, and even found time to study.

32 — Administration

The leaders who we never see when things go right, but we sure know where to find them when things go wrong.

57 — General Studies

The professors we least show our appreciation for in school, but with our age and maturity we will learn to respect, and respect what we learnt from these dedicated individuals.

72 — Seniors

A few faces you can never forget. Others you can never remember, exactly.

But as you look at these faces and names, the memories each one brings will bring a smile to your face and help you relive your college days.

135 — Alumni-Faculty

The faculty of Y.U. numbers approximately 150, it seems that most of these hard workers have been here forever, some have. Many teachers can tell you about going to Yeshiva College in the thirties, forties, and fifties.

Bernie Marmorstein is proud of the colonel, who is retiring from the post of Chief of Security of Y.U. and also it's his dad.

145 — Dramatics

The society, as we know it today, was started in 1965. Since then each of the society's productions has been open to the public and and the plays viewed by thousand of people.

Dr. Beukas feels a Yeshiva boy should always have his hair in place when acting, gives class in Hairstyling.

153 — Sports

Fans? Pep Squad? Win? Support? First Place? Missed class! Transcript! Beer Friends! Friends! Fun!!

Can you identify this Masked Man?

183 — Clubs & Organizations

Students with common characteristics and interest form clubs. Some are elected, some appointed, some are honors, but all are interesting in one way or another.

Holding up traffic on Amsterdam Ave

191 — Last Two Days

After spending 800 days, missed over 250 classes, pulled 75 all-nighters, it all boiled down to the last 48 hours in Yeshiva College.

The MASH-Bash on Feb. 28, 1983 was attended by 300 students, the N.Y. Times, N.Y. Post, and ABC News.

197 — Advertisements

One way to get classmates to support their yearbook is bug them enough. This year Masmid Staff did a great job as the class response was excellent.

In autumn when the Yeshiva doors have opened once again,
The car pulls up to the Yeshiva campus behold the time has come when
That perplexed expression and strained look returns to your face
Your thoughts confront an eery feeling, surrounding this one place.

Reading lists, Trips to Barnes & Noble,
  more new syllabi,
So much work already
  and only one week has gone by.
We go to class, we read the books
  the semester is a-startin'
But not for long because we know that YOM TOV is comin'

The days go by, reality casts a shadow on each dream
You try to protect Torah ideals
by remembering what they mean.
Torah U Madah is the motto that is drilled into our mind
Y.U. breathes the Torah
and the Madah is there to find.

When the classroom walls are closing in, we escape for relaxation
To the dormitory way of life,
that serves as our vacation.
Our hands are full with pranks we pull,
though boredom can be caught
From the lengthy lectures
which squeeze us dry,
And make us forget
what was taught.

The Seforim are kept open to keep our sparks alive.
It is the Gemorah, not the textbooks which allows us to survive.
As we experience ways unknown to the lives that we have led.
This thought will remain with us because with it our minds were fed.

רץ ישראל שייכת לעם ישראל

Israel has ignited a spark in the hearts of those who went there to learn,
The memories of the years well spent accompany our return.
But if the Jew in exile
must settle for second best,
Y.U. is not ARETZ,
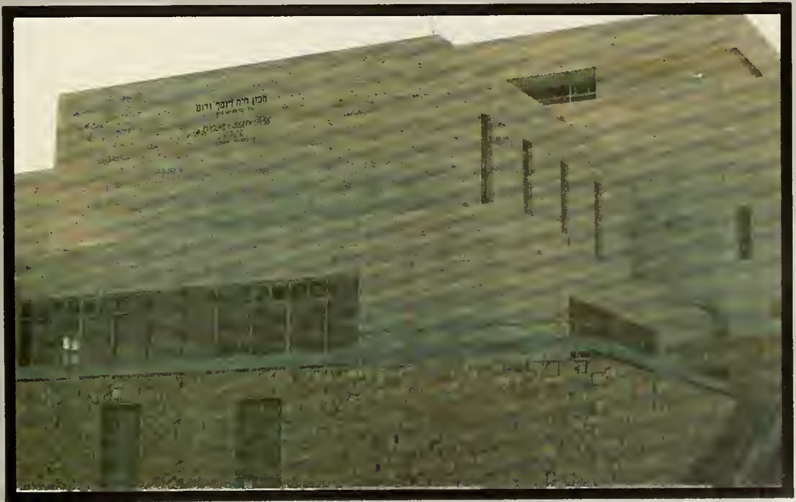
but it can supply the rest.



Yeshiva may be an all boys college,
up in the heights with very little around
Most guys seem to find girlfriends and on Thursday night are 34th Street bound.
With all the dialing that keeps us smiling,
talking to those we're dating,
Before you know it, her finger shows it,
It's an engagement we're celebrating.

DUNKIN' DONUTS

Most students in Y.U. dorms have to suffer without home cooking for the week,
In Morg and Rubin rooms are usually a mess, but one or two can be found that are neat.
Students seem to be always studying
Yet others are always stalling,
That's why on Amsterdam Avenue water bombs are always falling.

Requirements were designed to let our minds
broaden and grow,
Of the need for such courses
we are aware and we well know.
Who knows where the principles of taking music and art were founded,
And years from now we expect to say
"These courses made us well rounded."

Curriculum Proposal Rejected; Faculty Appoints New Committee

By MARK MAZER

Oct. 12 — The YC Faculty Assembly today voted unanimously to table discussion of the latest proposal of the YC Curriculum Committee. The Assembly also appointed a new eight member committee to formulate a new proposal.

The rejected proposal, which was presented last May after a year of deliberation inside the committee, called for a two year sequence of Great Books to replace most of the University's general education requirements. The first segement of that course was to have been entitled "Milestones of Western Thought," a modular sequence emphasizing classical works in such areas as Socio psychology, political thought, philosophy and history of science. The second year was to be "Masterpiece of Western Literature," a course similar, but not identical to the current Humanities 1-2 course. (The current English Composition, Art, Music and Jewish Studies requirements were to have been retained).

Reliable sources maintain that the proposal was tabled without any substantive discussion about its merit, a fate which also befell the last curriculum proposal (developed by the YC Senate) as it was rejected in 1981. Dr. Edward Levy, who heads the Faculty Assembly, felt that the proposal was too "radical" in its scope, and felt that the Faculty had not been properly consulted as the proposal was developed. However, it should be noted that in contrast to the Senate committee of two years ago, this committee was composed totally of faculty members, who were selected solely by their colleagues. (Two students, Dean Rosenfeld, and Mr. Friedenberg of the Registrar's Office served as non-voting consultants to the committee). Dr. Aaron Levine, who served as Chairman of the YC Currieulum Committee, disagrees. "I Believe the faculty reacted to quickly to the plan. We produced a general idea and wanted to see if the faculty approved before we dealt with specifics. Somehow the faculty

Before Y.U. becomes your yesterday,
A memory that can only age,
Reflect a moment, now,
Before you turn this page.
Remember how you strove to balance
Torah and Madah equally
And the friends you made
That are yours eternally.

Three Easy Steps

The date is August 28, and You, Joe Pre-Med, AKA "The Grub", have arrived at Yeshiva College for Freshman Orientation. Registration packets are hurled at you in a cloud of smoke by Edelstein, and you are ordered to register. Being totally confused, "The Grub" seeks out advice — "Stephen Lazar, where are you?" "Ask any Pre-Med you happen to see," he'll tell you, "call Einstein the Med School." (Thank the Lord for little things — you would've been up the creek without a paddle had Dr. Lazar (Ed.D.) been around.)

Fortunately, Joe meets Senior into Einstein (known as Senior, among his friends.) Senior, who is in the Post-Med phase, sees a "pre-med" in dire need and offers him the following advice.

1 — Don't come to YU, quit while you're ahead, and go to Columbia.
2 — If you mess up and attend YU (don't complain to me four years later) spend a year at BMT first.

"The Grub" hops on an El Al 747 jumbo jet to Israel, and arrives at BMT. Senior advises him to do the following. First and foremost, enjoy the greatest year in your life. Secondly, as far as coursework goes, your prime objective is to rid yourself of those tedious, pain in the —, Hebrew requirements. So enroll in Hebrew 1 and 2, 4 credits of Bible (at least), Jewish History 71 and 72 — That's 16 credits of requirements in a year of Israel, all A's. Throw in some philosophy (Maimonidies) and History (tours in Israel), (maybe they'll fulfill your social science requirement — this would raise the number of requirements you've fulfilled to 22 credits) to make you appear well rounded and educated. Your year in Israel included the following: 42 credits of A, a 4.00, Dean's List, with Highest Honors. You're on your way!

You've returned from Israel, and guess what? — it's time for summer school. You'll be spending your summer at the exclusive Camp Ida's Summer Camp, in the Bahamas. An expensive place, about 2500 dollars for the summer, that offers limited accommodations — the neighborhood is colorful. Ten credits of A; that gives you a 4.00 science index (to go along with your overall 4.00). Keep playing the game smart, and your letter of acceptance will be in the mail in about 2½ years.

Sophomore year is upon you, Joe. The time has come for you to diversify. Extracurricular activities (ECAC) are an integral part of gaining admission to the Medical School of your choice. The following options are available to you; it would be wise for you to pursue them:

1. The Commentator Newspapers always offer an impressive appearance for your AMCAS. Become the associate make-up editor (no easy task) and you'll have the position (make-up editor) locked up for the following year. It's automatic! Oh to be a junior and on Governing Board!
2. Involvement in a community activity — (helping old ladies when they cross the street) doesn't require much time, and it looks nice". Blood drive (little effort, big reward) It can't hurt, so get involved.

Back to the realm of scholastics, register for the following courses: Bio with Dr. T., Humanities (A/P/N) — so once again, you'll appear educated), English Comp with Dr. Seemor Lainoff, Speech with Dr. Beukas, Soc 1 and 2 with Dr. "You Know" Lunnard, and Fencing as a Team Sport, Hockey Intramurals (athletics look nice on your application). You'll also be taking the English Lit CLEP in the spring. (Stop by the computer room or the Dean's office for the Mesorah). Make sure you get your copies of all Mesorahs — they are your key to success. Still a 4.00, Dean's List with highest honors — you're on your way to Summa Cum Laude.

You'll spend the summer as a counselor in camp ("love to work with people shpiel") and having an enjoyable summer — the upcoming year will be a rough one (the boards).

JUNIOR YEAR — MCATs, Commentator Governing Board, A.E.D. Pre-Med Honor Society, and an Orgo-Physics Double (only one semester of physics) — you'll be pretty busy. Fill the rest of your schedule with garbage — Sociology of Family and of Health, Bio Ethics with you know who (and aid for interviews), Modern American Fiction with Lainoff (A/P/N), and Bio 60 (It's important to show hospital work somewhere — "How do you know you want to spend your life's work in Medicine?") Scientific Russian with Louria easy, you need only one year and it looks good. Don't forget to join the "Grossinger's Hotel and Country Club" Shiur. (Speak to Bronstein for advice) Springtime at Kaplan's, 10's on the MCAT's and you'll be in somewhere. "Premed" becomes Editor-in-Chief (may get you into Columbia) for the final feather in his cap. A successful year: 65 on the MCAT, interesting courses, and still perfect at 4.00. Once again, you're on the Dean's List with Highest Honors, you have Summa in the bag, and you're still in the running for Valedictorian.

Your summer will be spent filling out applications (make sure to mail them early) and doing research for "Friedman" (of Einstein fame) at Harvard. On paper you look super, you have everything: Extracurriculars in all areas — athletics, newspaper, and old ladies, a perfect index, nice MCAT scores, research at Harvard, nice recommendations, and Hospital work. In addition, you appear well rounded and educated. Senior year is a breeze. Goof off; play cards (pinochle and Rummy 500 are nice games) and puff basketball, join the ECAC, make road trips to Atlantic City and Action Park, write Hebrew Papers, and enjoy being Editor-In-Chief, and NEVER miss MASH and if possible, date because for 4 years you will never see a girl!

Now that you've taken the MCAT, gotten three teachers to lie about you in their recommendations, survived your Junior interview (by answering the following question correctly — What is your name??), a key to success is become friendly with Rose, filed 32 applications, ordered 32 transcripts, you receive notice that schools are ready to interview you. In order to successfully maneuver through these interviews (i.e. lie through your teeth) you must come up with an answer to the following question — Why do you want to be a Doctor?

There are several different approaches one can take.

1 — "I want to be a doctor to help people." This approach was last used successfully by Marcus Welby in 1928. The interviewer was so impressed by Welby's ability to give this answer with a straight face, that he signed him to a contract to appear in a new TV series that portrayed physicians as caring leaders and not as money grubbing ego maniacs.

2 — "To Make Money" — the interviewer will slam down his Gucci stethoscope on his antique mahogany desk and yell out, "What kind of motive is that?" Before he can finish, his beeper goes off. He dials the telephone and screams, "Code Blue — my medicaid stock just fell 20 points." He quickly grabs his Polo jacket and dashes out to his Porsche 924 muttering "the next time E. F. Hutton is on the operating table, I'll make sure he never talks again."

3 — "My mother told me to." The interviewer responds, "you've got to be your own man, and be assertive and don't let mommy push you around." As he escorts you to the door, his wife bursts in screaming, "Where's the Chopped Liver, My Corvette won't start . . ."

January 15, you have graduated to become a Post-Med; YOU'RE now Senior-Into-Einstein. Mazel Tov! It's now your job to advise (mislead) the masses of "Premeds" on how to "get in" and keep the tradition going.

As June approaches, you realize that you're uneducated and into Med School. Congratulations — YOU'VE FOOLED EVERYONE!

YESHIVA COLLEGE CLASS OF 1983

I extend to you my warmest good wishes upon this milestone in your educational careers.

The bachelor's degree no longer means as much as it used to. It is not an entrance ticket to the market place. It is no longer a terminal degree for most people, who find they must continue their schooling either at a graduate school or by taking technical courses. It is a milestone, not an end goal.

Yet, your attainment of this degree it is a cause for rejoicing -- and reflection. It does mean that a significant level of education has been attained. This is especially true for you, who have been privileged to undergo the rigors of a dual program. As young men who have been given the opportunity to receive both an advanced Torah education and a University-level secular education, whether humanistic or scientific, you now have the material and the tools with which to fashion a way of life based on Torah and informed by Madda. The "synthesis" that we speak of so often at Yeshiva was not -- and should not be -- spoon-fed to you. The encounter of Torah with world is something that you must experience yourselves, and the result of that confrontation will color your outlook and, indeed, all your lives. All we can do is give you the material, the tools, and some excellent role models.

May you succeed in all your undertakings, and become a source of great pride for you families and a boon to your communities and to all our people. And may you always look back in gratitude to Yeshiva, return to it to refresh yourselves intellectually and experientially, and help us educate future generations of students.

Cordially yours,

OFFICE OF THE DEAN

May 5, 1983

Dear Graduates:

I congratulate you, the members of the Class of 1983. Your graduation is a significant achievement and a joyous event for you, your family and your friends.

As students at Yeshiva College, you and your classmates have shared a commitment to the University ideal of Torah u'Madda. As graduates of Yeshiva College, you will be challenged to implement this ideal in your personal and professional lives and through your involvement in the concerns of the Jewish community.

This is an awesome challenge and some of you will question your adequacy to deal with it. But, more than a half-century of Yeshiva College men have demonstrated that this challenge can be met successfully. Our alumni have made their mark in society generally and have added strength and vitality to the world of Torah and Judaism. I am fully confident that you will meet this challenge with equal success.

Sincerely yours,

Norman S. Rosenfeld

DEAR SENIORS,

NO MONEY,
NO BOOKEY!

The 1983 Masmid is the culmination of a year's efforts by a dedicated team on a project that has consumed a considerable portion of their everyday lives. I can personally attest to the interminable number of planning sessions that were convened, in lieu of a good night's sleep, to overcome the myriad of problems that continually surfaced. The picture of our committed but, at times, disgruntled little group, huddled about a table in Morg Room 101, munching on food from Morg Mart while mentally digesting the Masmid's latest financial crisis, is forever imprinted on the retina of my mind's eye. It is an image to be recalled and savored when nostalgia for the past overtakes the tedium of the present.

Plaudits are in order for individuals who significantly and tirelessly contributed their sweat and talents to the development of the yearbook. In this category, I single out Nathan Fruchter, Ephraim Goldberg, Richard Reiss, Jeff Danowitz, Kevin Hayes, Michael Odinsky, and Bernie Marmorstein. What a glorious and vibrant bunch we were, immersed in our labor of love! We were inexorably tied together with a common purpose — to produce a document that would embody the spirit and flavor of the four years we had experienced at Y.U.

I sincerely hope that we have succeeded in our task. May the yearbook afford both us and our classmates with the ability to recapture, in retrospect, the meaningful, as well as amusing, little details that pervaded our lives as we progressed from naive freshmen to sophisticated seniors.

I wish to thank my room-mate Yaakov Friedman for tolerating the emergency Masmid meetings that were hastily convened at irregular hours in our dorm room. I would also like to express my appreciation to my buddies, Nathan Fruchter, Richard Reiss, Howie Schwab, Joey Bodner, Danny Epstein and Jacob Pleeter for sharing and caring, and for just being there when I needed a shoulder or two to lean on. The friendship and camaraderie that flourished between us provided me with the perfect counterbalance against the rigors and pressures of Yeshiva College academic life-style.

We are not usually afforded the privilege of conveying our feelings in print. However, as editor, I can exercise this option and herein convey my enormous gratitude to my parents and grandparents — their heart-felt encouragement has enabled me to reach goals I never thought I could attain. I will always endeavor to emulate the high moral and religious standards they have exemplified.

Reserving the most cherished for last, I would like to impart my boundless devotion for the girl that I met at Y.U. — Stern Shabbatos and subsequently wooed and wed, my dear wife, Reva. Her steadfast confidence in my abilities is the cornerstone upon which I can build the future dreams of our lives.

Samuel Johnson once critiqued an essay by one of his students with the following statement: "I found your report to be good and original. However, the part that was good was not original, and the part that was original was not good."

I hope that his evaluation of The 1983 Masmid would have been somewhat kinder.

Yumi Borgen

MASMID '83 DEDICATION

MRS. HENRIETTA FEENEY

The registrar's office, what adjectives would you use to describe it? Busy, nervous, hectic, pressured, noisy, crowded . . . it would take a true martyr to work under those conditions. Someone who is multitalented and organized, who can handle instructions from the administration, requests from the faculty and complaints from the students, while making each army feel that they are getting the better part of the deal. Someone who can take orders as well as give them.

Whoever said, "you can't please all of the people all of time" didn't realize there was a Henrietta Feeney at Yeshiva University to challenge that remark. In an impossible position, she transforms unworkable beginnings into feasible conclusions. Starting on March 10, 1959 and continuing for the next twenty-four years, Mrs. Feeney has been an example of what giving is all about. She makes the office her second home; co-workers and students are treated like family.

The class of '83 dedicates this yearbook to a woman who has illustrated the difference between those who park behind their desks and those who are ready to help the students standing in front of them. When we are afraid our hassling is becoming too much of a bother, she reassures us by stating "that's what I'm here for."

One may wonder why a Henrietta Feeney is dedicated enough to stay here for twenty-four years. She responds by saying "I feel as if I belong here." This year's seniors will be the first to admit it.

M*A*S*H Bash Draws 450;

Media Coverage Heightens Excitement

By MARK LEFKOVITZ

Feb. 28 — Over 450 Yeshiva and Stern College students assembled tonight in Belfer Commons to pay a final tribute to M*A*S*H, the popular CBS television series concluding its 11th season. The event attracted live television and newspaper coverage and proved to be one of the most successful YU Student Council ventures in recent memory.

Preparation for the Bash began during the day when many signs publicizing the event were posted throughout the school The Yeshiva University Publicity Department then contacted CBS News and arranged for live TV coverage on the nightly 11:00 newscast. Meanwhile, the large room in Science Hall was heavily decorated with streamers, posters and various exhibits based on the television series These exhibits included the famous operating room, M*A*S*H still, latrines, mess tent and recreation hall

Creators of the Bash also set up a 6 Ft diagonal TV screen to accomodate the large viewing audience To heighten variety and arouse further interest in the Bash, the Junior Class offered a $1.00 discount to all students who appeared in M*A*S*H - costumes This inspired many students to arrive dressed in hospital garb, army fatigues and terry robes

Look Alike Contest

M*A*S*H Bash ceremonies officially began while the audience was filing in at 8:10 P.M The evening's first event was the look-alike contest which featured impersonators of the M*A*S*H characaters: Col Henry Blake, Hawkeye "Groucho Marx" Pierce, Father Mulcahy, and Igor. This was followed by the singing of the M*A*S*H theme song, "Suicide is Painless," led by the "Mashman Tabernacle Chair," an esemble of 12 dedicated Yeshiva M*A*S*H fans Most of the 450 students joined in the singing of the chorus, filling the room with emotion and energy

When the M*A*S*H insignia finally appeared on the screen signalling the start of the 2½-hour special episode, a hush quickly fell over the excited crowd For the next 2½ hours there were few noisy outbursts as the plot of the final episode unfolded Audience interest was maintained during commercial breaks when members of each class were pitted against each other in the M*A*S*H Trivia

Computer Registration Necessary

It is no hazardous venture to say that few of those reporting for registration this term failed to be pleasurably surprised. The novelty of having registration conducted in a well-planned, systematized fashion could not have been less than overwhelming to students accustomed to the old procedure

The importance of the innovation can hardly be overestimated Here is not only a question of the mechanical completion of routine work on a more efficient basis. In the proper handling of registration problems lies the answer to more than one problem.

Even more important is the undeniable fact that slip-shod registration methods, with their accompaniment of endless worries, grueling waiting, and superfluous red tape to which students were forced to submit did more than a little to impair relations between undergraduates and administration

$250,000 In Rare Books Stolen From YU Library

By MARK LEFKOVITZ

The Commentator has learned hat a former staff member of the Y U. Library was arrested on April 7th on charges of grand arceny, second degree

The charges were filed in New York Criminal Court by Atikoth, an antique gallery located on Manhattan's Upper East Side According to the Manhattan District Attorney's Office, the accused stole property valued at $',500

While working at the Y U library, he allegedly stole rare books and other property from the library valued at more than $250,000 Reportedly, 96 cartons of books were returned to the library last week, allegedly from the accused's possession According to a source who requested anonymity, however, the stolen items were never catalogued, so an

When I entered college. I did so to learn about the world I live in — its history, structure, ideas, and life I expected to become educated, worldly, refined, and cultured Visions of intellectual lectures, interested students, and a wealth of information caused my mind to expand and prepare to grow I wanted to find out who I am, what I am, and why I am. And, I wanted to explore possible professions This was the plateau I stood on before entering Yeshiva College

Now I find myself as if in a heap of broken aspirations at the bottom of that lofty plateau My world now — and of course, there are exceptions — consists of four major areas Pre-med, Pre-law, accounting, and business Those fascinating fields I

Students Lobby In Washington In Support Of Soviet Jewry

By MARC MANDEL

Feb 23 — More than 700 college students representing various universities in the United States converged in Washington today to lobby on behalf of Soviet Jewry.

Of the 700 students, more than 100 were from Yeshiva and Stern Colleges Before the actual lobbying began there were several other activities the students attended to One group went to the Bnai Brith Headquarters and listened to Alexander Shipoff a Soviet refusenik address the gathering Mr. Shipoff stated that Jewish culture in Russia today is dead "There are no more Jewish organizations, or Jewish departments in Russia today" In fact, Mr Shipoff added, "The organization with the largest Jewish department in Russia today is the K G B" Mr Shipoff stressed that there is a physical danger for Jews in Russia, and things are becoming progressively worse

The State of MYP

By David Prince

It is no secret that there are problems with the Mazer Yeshiva Program Practically everyone is late. Some students don't attend shiur on Sundays, while others won't show a couple of times a week Then there are some who only attend shiur a couple of times a month To sum it all up, the Mazer Yeshiva Program is not working as planned

There is a minority of students who are not interested in learning and who are in Y.U. because of other reasons Most of the M Y P students, though, do have some desire to learn. Both types of students, however, have a common problem It is very difficult for one to begin college classes at 3:00 in the afternoon Most students need a couple of hours a day to themselves By taking a full credit after 3:00, one does not find himself with very much free time.

There are some students who can devote their time for learning from 9:00 to 3:00 Many others cannot spare all this time Consequently, a student comes late or occasionally misses a shiur Many of the students who do attend shiur find it difficult to concentrate the entire duration of the shiur A vicious cycle often begins If this involved only a few individuals, it would be a problem The fact is, it does involve the majority of the M Y P students

The institution of attendance taken by work-study students is ludicrous It is an attempt to treat the symptoms without giving any recognition to the illness When attendance is taken properly, it merely shows the seriousness of the problem

Erna Michael College To Become Isaac Breuer College of Hebraic Studies

The Commentator has learned that the University's Teachers Institute for Men (known since 1966 as Erna Michael College) will be renamed the Isaac Breuer College of Hebraic Studies following a major contribution by New York philanthropist Hermann Merkin, who is Breuer's son-in-law

Teachers Institute was established by the Mizrachi organization of America in 1917 Sixteen years ago, the late Jakob Michael contributed $1.25 million to name the school in memory of his late wife, Erna Sondheimer Michael, with the provision that the University be permitted to rename the College following his death Mr Michael died in September of 1979

Dr Isaac Breuer (1883-1946), who was the grandson of Rabbi Samson Raphael Hirsch, was an intellectual leader in German Jewry Following the rise to power of the Nazis, Dr Breuer moved to Jerusalem in 1936 There he helped to organize Po'alei Agudat Israel, of which he later became president.

In announcing the name change and the gift, President Norman Lamm noted that, "It seems fitting that a college of Yeshiva University should be named for Dr Isaac Breuer, who was a Judaic scholar, a leader in the Jewish community and an attorney Like Isaac Breuer, our students learn the great ideas of Judaic and secular thinkers, for we offer them the best of both worlds"

Mr Merkin is president of Merkin & Co, Inc, a member of the New York Stock Exchange He has been more actively involved with the University for the past two decades as a member of the University's Board of Trustees, the Board of Directors of Cardozo School of Law, and the Board of Overseers of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine Mr Merkin was awarded the University's citation for exceptional leadership in the advancement of higher education in 1968 and an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree in 1980

Uptown Kaplan Branch Under Consideration

By MORDECHAI TWERSKY

Yeshiva University officials, concerned that students preparing for graduate entrance examinations are missing much of their classes, particularly in Judaic Studies, are considering a proposal to open a branch of the Stanley H Kaplan Educational Center at the Main Center in Washington Heights, the Commentator has learned.

The proposal, one of the several that are being discussed by a committee of Administration officials and Roshei Yeshiva, would attempt to put students back into classrooms again, while enabling them to prepare adequately for the MCAT, LSAT, and OMAT examinations

Eliminates Transportation Problem

According to Rabbi Zevulun Charlop, director of the Mazer Yeshiva Program and chairman of the committee, implementation of such a proposal would also "eliminate the transportation problem students have been confronted with en route to Kaplan's," which is located in Midtown

While several of the committee members have indicated in interviews with the Commentator that the Kaplan proposal may have its "positive aspects," many expressed the need to consider the plan with "cautious optimism"

Max Stern Scholar Program Established

by Mark Mazer

The Commentator has learned of the establishment of an annual scholarship program for undergraduates which will be called the Max Stern Scholars Program Designed to attract exceptionally gifted students to Yeshiva University, the program will offer $20,000 over the four undergraduate years, as well as a specially enriched curriculum to each student who participates in the program

Although the details of this uniquely designed curriculum have yet to be worked out, active recruitment is already underway to select the 5-10 high school seniors who will inaugurate the program next fall. (Eventually it is estimated that there will be 20 Stern Scholars each at YC and SCW)

Max Stern Scholars will be chosen on academic record and leadership potential, as indicated by

The junior team, coached by Chaim Nordlicht, upset the heavily favored sophomore team in the intramural championship by a score of 48-41. Due to Jeff Katz's rebounding prowess and Ian Landow's quick movement down the court, the juniors were able to control the tempo of the game

The juniors came out at the start of the game all ready to play and opened up with a strong first quarter and a lead of 12-3 In the second quarter, the heavily favored sophomores were determined to close the gap. Their best efforts

HELP!

Here we go again.

Toxic Fumes In Science Hall May Pose Health Hazard To Students

The Commentator has learned that the University is now in the process of correcting possible safety hazards in Science Hall. The problems center primarily around the chemical storage room in the building's basement, and the space rented to outside scientific research concerns in the building's upper floors

Bomb Squad Visit

The storage room, room B-09, is located in the tunnel linking Science Hall to Rubin Hall, adjacent to the loading platform and bakery area of Parker's cafeteria. The room, specially equipped with 'blast walls', designed to withstand the impact of an explosion, contains chemicals and other supplies left over from the now defunct Belfer Graduate School of Science, which closed down in 1976. Last spring, the New York City Bomb Squad was called in to remove a container of crystalized isopropyl ether (a chemical which is entirely safe in its liquid form, but becomes highly explosive in its crystaline form)

Although the incident involving the Bomb Squad seems to have prompted the University to begin cleaning up B-09 it was not the only near accident in the room. On another occasion, a University maintenance man entered B-09 to drill holes in the wall. Despite being warned about the danger of sparks from the drill, the workman persisted, claiming that he only needed to drill three little holes. It was only after being told, "By the time you finish the first hole, they'll be no more building left," that the workman backed down

IAC Mobilizes Student Support

The Israel Affairs Committee (IAC) of Yeshiva College is alive and functioning. According to the committee chairman, Phil Machlin, the aims of the group are to mobilize student support for Israel and to keep the student body of Yeshiva College informed on all issues pertaining to Israel.

The Committee has been granted official recognition by the Yeshiva College Student Council and works closely with the Israeli Consulate in New York and the Jewish Agency.

The Israel Affairs Committee sponsored a petition drive in support of Israel in September and gathered over a thousand signatures. Representatives of the committee presented Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzchak Shamir with a copy of the petition on his recent trip to the United States

On October 22nd the committee led a group of close to twenty Yeshiva College students to a

Menorah Sets Rubin Dorm Room Ablaze

By DANIEL ROSENTHAL

On Friday evening, December 17 a fire broke out on the second floor of the Rubin Dormitory. The fire alarm was pulled at about 4:30 P.M. the building was evacuated, and no one was hurt. The fire began when a chanukah menorah was placed too close to a plastic window. The window quickly melted and dripped outside the building as the dormitory room filled with smoke. Although the fire department was alerted almost immediately, the firefighters arrived approximatly 20 minutes after the incident began. Within those 20 minutes the school guards, who were changing shifts at the time, came to the scene to help. By the time the fire department arrived, two of the school guards, Smeld Herring, Rayomond Rodriguez and Painter Pedro Gonzales were already rendering themselves of assistance on the second floor. As Mr Steve Saunders security assistant at Yeshiva explained, "We had very fast action. Smeld went up and did

YC Senate Proposes New Calendar; Classes Would Begin On October 6

By ISAAC ZUKER & BENJY SCHDENBERG

The Yeshiva College Senate has proposed to start the academic year 1983-1984 on October 6, considerably later than in past years. The calendar would be adjusted for the late start to that graduation would be on June 4, 1984 required number of school days needed by the state. At the same time, the calendar maintains a 10 day vacation for the College

A major concern of the Senate was the possibility of a late graduation next year. The proposed calendar, however, will enable the graduation to proceed on schedule

Brookdale Hall Evacuated Following Bomb Threat

By Neil Adler

Oct. 30 — The Stern dormitory was evacuated on account of a bomb threat. At 10:17 PM a call was received by 911 claiming that a bomb had been planted in Brookdale Hall. After the dormitory was evacuated, Rabbi and Mrs Reich, the head dorm councelors, granted permission for the police to search the basement and lobby of the dorm for any suspicious objects. Subsequently, at 10:47 PM, when no foreign objects had been found, the students were allowed to return to their respective dorm rooms

In an interview with the Y.U. security staff, Colonel Robert Marmorstein security office Col. Marmorstein continued by saying that general procedure in the event of a bomb scare is to notify the police and conduct a thorough search without evacuation of the buildings. He stressed that their main goal is not to raise anxiety among the students. A true bomb scare is unlikely in the Stern dorm because it is well protected. It is extremely difficult for a stranger to actually enter the building without being noticed by security guards, because of the layout of the lobby and elevator entrances

Although bomb scares are far from common in Y.U. facilities, this was not the first to occur on Yeshiva property. One Saturday night last year a threat was received, claiming that a bomb had been planted in the Mendel Gottesman Library. Since the library had been tightly locked over Shabbat, with an alarm system and 24 hour security watch, a real bomb was highly unlikely and the call was dismissed as a prank

IN MEMORIAM

Rav Jervcham Gorelik
Z"L

Rav Aaron Shatzkes
Z"L

In little more than a year four outstanding European Roshei Yeshiva, each of whom served our Yeshiva for close to four decades, passed away. We mourn, but do we have any real sense of the loss? In recent years few students attended shiurim given in Yiddish; American-trained, younger maggidei shiur attracted the large numbers.

Yet it was the small group of survivors of the destruction of Eastern European Jewry who were responsible for the blossoming of Torah in this country. Without these Rabbeim and others like them, there would have been no Americans capable of saying shiurim in English. The transplanting of the Torah of Brisk, Mir, Telz, and Radin to the United States is one of the most remarkable accomplishments of Jewish history. To go from observing one's world totally demolished, to rebuilding Torah in an alien environment without speaking the native tongue, is an extraordinary achievement.

Unfortunately, the pupils who could not understand why their Rebbeim demanded so much from them and belittled American culture, often saw only bitterness and cynicism. Great scholars taught students who did not understand the topics that they had analyzed in depth, and great insights were left unexplained for lack of an appropriate audience. Despite all the frustrations and disappointments, slowly the level of American Yeshiva bachurim begin to rise. Much Torah was lost, but slowly, the Beis Medrash Lights began to stay on later with crowds of Talmidim inside and Yeshiva Boys were not embarrassed to make becoming a Talmid Chacham a life's goal.

Each of the four Roshei Yeshiva — Rabbi Yosef Leib Arnest, Rabbi Isaac Noach Borenstein, Rabbi Jeruchem Gorelick, and Rabbi Abraham Aharon Schatzkes, of blessed memory — was a special person of exceptional quality; to speak of them only as representatives of a type is to do them an injustice. The method of analyzing a sugya, the stress on original thinking or encyclopedic knowledge, the clarity of explanation was unique to each; both as Rosh Yeshiva and Torah personality, each deserves a proper hesped.

The most striking contrast was between the quiet, unassuming Rav Schatzkes and the dynamic, fiery Rav Gorelick. Both were authentic exemplars of the complex richness of Torah life. Our lives were enriched by exposure to all four. Of far deeper significance, at a critical moment in Jewish history when great citadels of Torah learning were obliterated, these Roshei Yeshiva were among the precious few who were chosen by G-d to plant Torah in our new soil. May their memory be a blessing to all who knew them personally and those who know them only indirectly.

Yeshiva Shooting Believed Linked to 2 Others

By LEONARD BUDER

Within 15 days in June there were three shooting incidents in upper Manhattan involving shots fired from passing cars.

First, on June 7, four or five shots were fired into the lobby of the main administration building of Yeshiva University, at 500 West 185th Street in Washington Heights. Then, two days later, six shots struck the Jewish Memorial Hospital building, at 196th Street and Broadway. No one was injured in either incident.

On June 22, about 20 shots were fired into the B'Teavon dairy restaurant, a spot popular with Yeshiva University students, at 2549 Amsterdam Avenue between 186th and 187th Streets. This time, three students were wounded. All three are recovering from their wounds.

Hours after the third incident, the police announced that ballistics tests showed that the same gun — a high-velocity weapon, possibly an M-16 rifle — had been used in the attack on the restaurant and the shooting at the hospital. While the bullets fired in the June 7 incident could not be matched because of their poor condition, the police said, they believed the incident was related to the two others.

Detectives from the Police Department's bias investigation unit, the Manhattan Borough task force and the 34th Precinct detective squad were put on the case.

F.B.I. to Examine Yeshiva Shooting

The Justice Department yesterday asked the F.B.I. to conduct a preliminary inquiry into the shooting Wednesday of three students in a restaurant across the street from Yeshiva University in Washington Heights. A Federal Bureau of Investigation spokesman in New York City said the inquiry would be undertaken at once.

William Bradford Reynolds, the assistant attorney general for civil rights, said the inquiry was to see if the incident, and two other recent shooting incidents in the area involving the university and a Jewish hospital, represented a violation of Federal civil-rights statutes that would warrant a full-scale investigation.

The inquiry had been requested by the Metropolitan Council of the American Jewish Congress.

On Thursday, Mayor Koch announced a $10,000 reward in the case. The New York chapter of the American Jewish Council yesterday pledged an additional $10,000 in reward money.

Same Rifle Was Uptown and in

By FRAN

Police Commissioner Robert J. McGuire said yesterday that the same weapon that was used to kill a woman and wound a Yeshiva University High School student Sunday was used in several attacks near the school last June.

"We can speculate that the shooting were anti-Semitic," Mr. McGuire said "that they were done by people wh had problems with Yeshiva students by gangs in the area or by a disgruntle employee."

A spokesman for Yeshiva University, Samuel Hartstein, said:

"We have to accept that these are attacks by an anti-Semitic gang or individual that has his mind set on attack on Jewish students. We have played ou every scenario we can think of. W have to support that scenario for wan of anything else."

New attacks against Jews

Though the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith reported last January that the number of anti-Semitic incidents in the U.S. had dropped 14.9% from 1981 to 1982, complacency seems ill advised. Consider the attacks against Jews in West Hartford, Conn., and one in New York City this summer. The past two weeks brought new incidents in both places.

▶ It was 5:45 a.m. on Yom Kippur, the solemn Jewish holy day, when Connecticut State Representative Joan Kemler, stirred by the smell of smoke, crept downstairs. Flames were shooting through the living-room wall of her West Hartford home. She quickly routed her husband, Surgeon Leonard Kemler, and their two children to safety and summoned the fire department. Police found two liter-size plastic soda bottles propped against the two-story home; they had been filled with a flammable liquid, possibly gasoline.

The incident was the fourth arson attack against Jews in West Hartford (pop. 61,000), an affluent suburb of Connecticut's capital, in less than six weeks. The first fire badly charred the wooden interior of the Young Israel of West Hartford Synagogue. Four days later, a second blaze gutted Emanuel Synagogue, a few blocks from the site of the first arson. The next day, flames raced through the home of Rabbi Solomon Krupka, spiritual leader of Young Israel. He and his family were away; six guests staying there managed to escape unharmed.

▶ After finishing tryouts for the ice-hockey team last week, Donald Spilky, 17, and four other students from Yeshiva University High School in Manhattan headed home by automobile to Queens on the Cross Bronx Expressway. A gunman, or gunmen, followed in a car, sped ahead of them on the expressway, and parked in waiting at an exit ramp. As the students neared the Whitestone Bridge, a volley from a high-powered automatic or semiautomatic M-16–type rifle rang out. One shot missed the students and killed Lucille Rivera, 37, a Queens mother of two who was a front-seat passenger in the vehicle next to theirs. A second blast ripped into the back seat of the youngsters' car, wounding Spilky in the right knee.

The expressway shootout was the fourth attack in 3½ months on Yeshiva students and other Jews in the ethnically diverse north Manhattan neighborhood of Washington Heights. On June 7, four bullets were fired at Yeshiva's five-story brick administration building; two days later, someone fired six .223-cal. blasts at Jewish Memorial Hospital. Neither attack caused more than minor property damage; no one was hit. But two weeks after that four still unidentified people pumped 20 shots from a passing car into a neighborhood luncheonette known as a Yeshiva student hangout, wounding three of the 50 students inside.

Police Commissioner Robert McGuire last week said ballistics tests showed that the high-velocity copper-jacketed bullets fired in three of the incidents came from the same weapon. He assigned 30 investigators to the case. Yeshiva is spending $250,000 to hire Wells Fargo security guards.

NEW YORK (AP) — Police have classified the shooting of two rabbincial students and a high school youth as a "bias incident" and say they believe it was connected to two other recent shootings near the Yeshiva University campus in upper Manhattan.

The two Yeshiva University students and a Yeshiva High School student were wounded Wednesday when gunmen fired as many as 20 shots from automatic weapons into a kosher luncheonette frequented by students from the schools in the Washington Heights section, police said.

Riflemen wound 3 at Yeshiva

By MARALYN MATLICK, CYNTHIA R. FAGEN and CHRIS OLIVER

THREE students were wounded by rifle fire yesterday near Yeshiva University in the upper West Side — the third anti-Semitic shooting in the area this month.

Two of the victims, Abraham Weintraub, 25, and Yosef Zimmerman, 40, were hit in the arm by bullets as they lunched at the Dairy restaurant, 2549 Amsterdam Av.

More than 20 rounds of ammunition, probably from a military M-16, shattered the windows of the restaurant, sending screaming customers diving to the floor for cover.

A third victim, 14-year-old Lee Needleman, 14, was grazed across the stomach by a bullet.

The Yeshiva High School student was treated at the scene.

Zimmerman and Weintraub were taken to Columbia Presbyterian Hospital. Zimmerman was later released, but Weintraub was held for surgery, because of vein damage caused by the bullet that struck his arm.

Inspector John Hill of the 34th Pct. said three Hispanic men jumped out of a car bearing New Jersey license plates and one opened fire, spraying the restaurant with "the type of high speed bullet used in an M-16."

It was the third shooting in the upper Manhattan neighborhood this month.

On June 7, Hill said, "a couple guys drove by Yeshiva University and sprayed bullets at the windows."

Two days later, bullets were also fired at windows of the nearby Jewish Memorial Hospital.

Fragments from the first incident matched bullets found at yesterday's scene, cops said.

No one was injured in the previous incidents.

"Yes, we think all three are related," said Lt. Arthur O'Connor of the Wadsworth Av. station.

Anyone with information concerning the shootings should call the 34th Pct., at 927-9711. All information will be kept confidential.

Yeshiva U. is sprayed by gunfire

By DAVID NG and PHILIP MESSING

ANTI-Semitic youths in a car sped past Yeshiva University in Washington Heights yesterday afternoon, riddling the main building in a wild fusillade of gunfire.

No one was injured in the shooting, which is being investigated by detectives for anti-Semitic overtones.

But police sources said the shooting may have been sparked by the dismissal of a Yeshiva employe who was fired two or three weeks ago for stealing.

The incident at 3:10 p.m. occurred in front of 500 W. 185th St. as students finished with the day's exams met in front of The Saul and Hilda Furst Hall.

Three or four Hispanic youths driving east on 185th St. in a blue station wagon opened fire, pegging about six shots at the school.

Howard Katner, 25, a rabbinical student, said the shots whizzed by him and two friends and at least one struck the cement side of the building about three feet over their heads.

Police took several youths into custody for questioning but released them.

The incident was referred to the Police Dep't's Bias Unit which investigates racially or religiously motivated attacks.
